

AD CLUB TALKS TIRES UNTIRINGLY

For the better part of an hour the Ad club at its luncheon today in the Hotel Young talked truth in tire advertising and then decided to refer the matter to the vigilance committee for investigation and a report next Wednesday.

The question was brought up by two letters, one from A. N. Wayne, manager of Smoot & Steinhauser, and one from O. H. Shepard, tire salesman for the von Hamm-Young Co., in which it was pointed out that E. H. Lewis of the Lewis Garage had advertised standard tires at 50 per cent below usual prices without stating in his advertisement that the tires were not guaranteed.

Replying, E. H. Lewis declared that attempts had been made to injure his business. His letter was read by President W. R. Farrington to the club, in which it was stated that the tires he had for sale were not seconds, as stated by Messrs. Wayne & Shepard, but ordinary standard tires without a guarantee.

The question simmered down after considerable discussion as to whether the tires which Mr. Lewis was selling were first or second tires and whether his advertising had been misleading in not stating that the tires he sold were not guaranteed. The vigilance committee will inquire of the tire manufacturers as to what kind of tires they sell to the San Francisco and New York Tire Co., for which company Mr. Lewis is the Honolulu agent.

W. H. Soper, A. N. Wayne, C. H. Smith and O. H. Shepard were elected members of the Ad club.

WOMAN, SICK, IS TAKEN FROM BOAT

There were nearly 30 stopover passengers on the Japanese ship which is in port today from the Orient and 900 tons of the total cargo of 4343 tons is for Honolulu merchants.

Due to the serious illness of Miss J. B. Ross, a through passenger, arrangements were made to have her transferred to the Queen's hospital. This was done through the intervention of Mrs. D. A. Scott, wife of a naval officer with the Asiatic fleet, who is to stop here for a visit before going on to the mainland.

Miss Ross is the daughter of a Canadian commissioner who is located in Shanghai. She took the sea voyage in the hope of benefiting her health.

Burglar Slapped By Girl When He Makes Apologies

How she ordered a burglar out of her yard last night, chased him down the road, threatened him with a revolver and finally slapped his face when he "got fresh," was told today by Victoria Fernandez, who gives her age as 16, and who lives at the corner of Miller and Punchbowl streets.

Miss Fernandez says that about 11 o'clock she saw a man enter the yard, get up on the steps, take off his hat and coat and otherwise act queerly. Guessing that he was a burglar, she told him to get out of the yard. "So I said: 'You beat it or I'll get a gun and blow your brains out.' He hung around, so I got a revolver from my mother and went out on the steps and again told him to get out. So he ran down the road and I ran after him and I caught up with him and said: 'What do you mean fooling around my house? I'll blow your brains out if you come around again.'"

"He began to apologize, but I told him to get along. Then he said: 'All right. Goodbye, girlie,' and when he got fresh and said that, I slapped his face a good one and pointed the gun at him. He certainly hurried off!"

The girl says that if he hadn't run she would have marched him down to the police station and had him locked up.

WATSON IS GUARDIAN.

Under bond in the sum of $50,000 Attorney E. M. Watson has been appointed by Circuit Judge Ashford as guardian ad litem of David K. and Helen L. Kawanakoa, minors. Attorney Watson applied for the appointment on the ground that the interests of the minors should be protected in the matter of the annual accounts of J. F. Colburn, trustee, in which, the report of the master, C. S. Davis alleges, there is a disparity.

but became seriously ill aboard the ship.

E. G. Jellicoe, a British barrister from London, and his wife are among the passengers who are to make a short visit here.

Y. Takakuwa, former president of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce, was one of the Honolulu merchants who returned from the Orient.

There were nearly 300 steerage passengers who disembarked here, about 50 of them being picture brides. Others were Japanese and Chinese coming from the Orient to reestablish their homes in this territory.

Two of four men charged with assaulting and robbing Thomas A. West of the American Net & Twine Co. of Cambridge, Mass., were arrested.

Dorothy Dix Talks

WATCH YOUR TONGUE, LADIES.

BY DOROTHY DIX,
The World's Highest Paid Woman
Writer.

A MAN said to me: "Why don't you write something about the loose way in which women talk nowadays? It's gotten so that there doesn't seem to be any more reserve in conversation, and the things that perfect ladies say would have made a fishwife of 20 years ago blush."

"Why, the other day I was reading in my library and I couldn't help overhearing the talk of two or three women who were having tea with my wife, and the subjects they discussed, the stories they told and the jokes they shrieked over made me feel like a gentleman present!" And these women were good, refined, educated women, leaders in the church, shining members of women's clubs, pillars of society in general. I tell you I was never more horrified in my life.

"And these women aren't the only ones. Honestly, a modest man doesn't dare to let his dinner partner take the conversational lead. He's afraid that she'll begin on eugenics, or birth control, or some sort of sex problem, or the nude in art, or some other topic that will raise the goose flesh on him and make the very bald spot on his head turn red with embarrassment. Believe me, women can't have any idea of how shocking such talk is to men or they wouldn't be guilty of it."

"All men, even those who have dirty minds and foul tongues, cherish the tradition that a woman's mind is full of pure and beautiful thoughts and that her words turn into pearls as they fall from her lips, as did those of the Good Little Girl in the old fairy tale."

"Once or twice I have heard a drunken woman cursing and swearing, and it seemed the very measure of the depths of the degradation to which she had sunk. I felt I could forgive her for anything she might have done but not for the things she said."

"Only the other day I was talking to a beautiful, delicate and refined girl—a girl who looked like a lily, she was so pure and fragile—but at something that I said to her she exclaimed, 'Gosh!' I couldn't have been a bit more disenchanted if she had slapped me in the face."

"There's a word out West they call the fighting word. When it is said to a man he draws his gun. I am sure that 'Gosh' on a young girl's lips is the spell-breaking word that disillusion the most ardent suitor, and that when it is said to him he folds his tent like the Arab and as silently steals away."

"It used to be that only the kind of women that we didn't introduce to our mothers and wives indulged in telling risky stories and perpetrated double faced jokes, but now some of the raciest anecdotes we ever hear are told us by mother and wife. And as for our daughters—well, it's daughter who calmly drags out on to the parlor carpet problems that father wouldn't have mentioned to her for the world."

"I'll declare," said the exasperated man in conclusion, "I sometimes think that women have lost all sense of modesty. They have thrown away all of their seven veils of concealment of body and mind. They've got no more reticence in clothes or speech, and their conversation is as décollete as their gowns. What's the matter with women, anyway?"

"They are in the throes of a reaction from old conditions and customs and the pendulum always swings as far one way as it did the other," I replied.

"Because women for centuries have been swaddled and hampered by garments that cribbed, cabined and confined, they have stripped off all of the garments that they could. Because they have been hampered by long skirts and trains that they had to hold up as they walked they have chopped off their skirts to the knees, and because a perfect lady was supposed to only say 'prunes and prisms,' women are shouting 'Damn' at the top of their voices."

"Slaves aren't to be blamed if they mistake license for liberty, nor if they think that the right of free speech gives them the privilege to indulge in the wrong sort of talk. That's where women are making their mistake. For so long women have had to pretend that they didn't know the things that they did know, and to keep silent concerning every subject that wasn't utterly innocuous, it isn't surprising that now, when the ban has been lifted and they can discuss any subject they please, they have run conversationally amuck."

"It's been a little tedious, you know, for a woman to have to belie her sense of humor and look horrified instead of amused if the point of a joke was a trifle broad. It has been wearing on the nerves to have to be properly shocked, because you were a lady, if any one dared even to refer in your presence to some of the big vital problems of life. And women have been bored to extinction by having to prattle about the beautiful sunshine and the birds and flowers and soulful subjects in general, because they were the only topics that a refined lady could converse upon with a member of the male sex."

"So it isn't much wonder that now when women are being recognized for the first time as human beings they've gone on a sort of conversational debauch, a talk-fest, in which they are talking too much and too loosely and saying things that would be far better left unsaid."

"I deprecate this thing just as much as you do. It is just as shocking to me as it is to you, because when a woman throws away her reserve she not only casts away her chief charm, but her chief means of defense."

"Women are judged by what they say far more than by what they do. A woman who is loud talking and slangy, who rips out a pet oath occasionally and who tells off colored stories, may be in reality as chaste as Caesar's wife, but she will have the reputation of being fast and she will be subjected to insults from men."

"On the other hand a woman who is delicate and refined in conversation and who frowns upon all salacious talk needs no better chaperon than her conversational repertoire. A wise old man of the world of my acquaintance gave this advice to a young girl who was leaving home to make her own living:—

"My dear," he said, "you will meet many men and women who will try to tell you dirty stories. Look them straight in the face and pretend not to see the point or understand them. There are very few people abandoned enough to try to explain a filthy joke to a woman so pure minded that she doesn't comprehend it. You will be perfectly safe as long as your conversation is always modest and refined."

Without doubt there is too much looseness of talk among women. Better the day when a perfect lady spoke of the limbs of a piano than those in which a woman recounts in utter frankness in public places the inti-

Fishermen Take to Water Rather Than Be Sentries' Target

Eight Japanese fishermen, attempting to sail into the harbor before daylight this morning, were made the targets of sentries' rifles, and rather than run the chance of stopping the bullets they dove overboard and swam to shore. One fisherman, however, would not brave the cold water, and calmly awaited his fate while the guards boarded the sampan.

The swimmers, however, were rounded up, and taken to the guard house, together with the man in the sampan. They were later turned over to the police, who have them booked for investigation. The men are: K. Shiro, Ino Uae, U. Gumpao, K. Kadzumi, Ichi Uru, K. Kikudo, F. Naka and K. Mordzumi.

Through miscalculations the Bolivar Lighthouse on the Bolivar Peninsula was shelled in target practice.

E. W. CHRISTMAS BACK FROM MAUI; SHOW PAINTINGS NEXT TWO WEEKS

E. W. Christmas, R. B. A., world-traveler and cosmopolitan painter, is in Honolulu after five months' absence spent on the island of Maui, where he added materially to his already fine collection of island scenes.

Mr. Christmas will open an exhibition next Monday at 3 o'clock in the large rooms over Castle & Cooke's offices. His exhibit hours will be from 10 to 5 daily after the first afternoon.

He will show principally his recent island work, including some unusually fine oils. He has done several monotypes and has many attractive sketches. Christmas is one of the few painters who have come to Hawaii who has really studied the islands and gone out into the open for weeks at a time to get at the heart of his subject, and his painting reflects his love of nature as seen in island landscapes.

He is contemplating now an extended trip on the American continent, going first to the Grand Canyon, then up to British Columbia, and after that to New York. He will take with him a number of his Hawaiian paintings. The exhibition which opens Monday will continue about two weeks.

its helpless victim. Of half these blows any one was enough to have caused death.

Three slashes had been made at the head and three others were upon the arms. With one blow which had been driven straight at the back of the neck just at the base of the skull, the head was virtually amputated, hanging to the body by only the flesh of the throat. The spinal cord showed from the blood covered base of the wound.

Another gash which had penetrated the lad's skull lay just above the left eye. This was perhaps four inches long and had bared flesh and bone from the eyebrow to the upper part of the head. Still another wound reaching almost from ear to ear had been driven into the brain from the back of the skull.

The left hand had been severed from the arm at the wrist, hanging by only a shred of skin. The forefinger
